Background: A NDA is a form of contract between two or more parties that restricts the disclosure of confidential material or information to third parties. In general, state contract law governs NDAs. Employers commonly use NDAs to protect trade secrets or intellectual property. NDAs may be required as a condition of employment when an applicant is first hired, and in severance or separation agreements when an employee leaves. NDAs are also used in settlements as a means to resolve disputes or civil lawsuits. Typically, in NDAs one party agrees to drop a lawsuit or potential lawsuit in return for payment and silence.

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Breaching a signed NDA contract may result in the loss of settlement money and gives the defendant the right to sue.

There are limitations on NDAs. NDAs may not restrict a person's right to report harassment, discrimination, and criminal activity to authorities. Under the Washington Law Against Discrimination (WLAD), a person has the right to be free from discrimination related to a protected status, such as race, national origin, sex, veteran or military status, sexual orientation, and disability. An employer may not discriminate against a person because of the person's protected status. Sexual harassment is a form of sex discrimination under WLAD and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Summary of Bill: In civil lawsuits relating to sexual harassment or assault, a NDA does not affect discovery or the availability of witness testimony for past instances of sexual harassment or assault. Any provision of a nondisclosure policy or agreement that would limit, prevent, or punish disclosure related to discovery and witness testimony is contrary to public policy and unenforceable.

The court shall enter appropriate orders to ensure that the identity of any person who is a victim, or is alleged to be a victim of sexual harassment or assault is not made public as a result of discovery or witness testimony in a civil lawsuit relating to sexual harassment or assault, unless such person consents to disclosure.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: People in power have demonstrated predatory behavior for sexual harassment and sexual assault. Non-disclosure agreements are used to hide sexual harassment and sexual assault. These NDAs are facilitating bad behavior by perpetual harassers. The bill protects victim's privacy and is good because it balances the need for privacy and also stopping sexual harassment. There needs to be further clarification with regard to arbitration agreements.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Senator David Frockt, Prime Sponsor; Nancy Sapiro, Legal Voice; Larry Shannon, Washington State Association for Justice.

Persons Signed In To Testify But Not Testifying: No one.
